RIVER NEWS.—The Potomac still continues covered with solid ice as far down as Maryland Point. Opposite this city persons were crossing freely from shore to shore this morning, some of them being engaged in hauling lumber over upon sleds. Captain Wesley Davis was also out with his ice boat—a frame upon skates and equipped with a sail—and was sailing about beautifully. Captain Joe Denty, of the tug boat Smith Pettit, arrived from Quantico last night, and reports the schooner Isabel, from Baltimore for this port with a cargo of lumber, as lying at that place; also, that the New York steamer E. C. Knight, with five oyster boats in tow, the Union Bell, the Azelia H. Pearl, the Mary Park, the J. S. Havens, Captain Evans' boat, preceded by the tug boats Smith Pettit and Mary Lewis, which broke a track through the ice, started up from open water, and had all arrived at Quantico except the Union Bell, which was out through and sunk off Liverpool Point, the crew barely escaping. The other four boats were also more or less damaged. The E. C. Knight then started for this city, and last night had gotten up as far as Indian Head. The schooner Walter Jones is reported fastened in the ice and ashore at Maryland Point. The tug Mary Lewis and Smith Pettit are now in Quantico, unable to force their way through the ice this side of that place. The sloop Susan Brower sailed up as far as Maryland Point, but finding solid ice there, went back down the river. The three master Eleanor Vandusen, a wood loaded schooner and two or three other vessels are lying in Nanjemoy Reach.
